
UTOPIA – THE KITCHEN OF THE FUTURE

What will the kitchen of the future look like? Automated lifestyle object or back to the roots of the mobile hearth. There are several visions for the kitchen of the future.

With the advent of modernity, the kitchen has constantly been rethought. There is also still a negotiation about how we will eat in the future. Will we keep eating out more and more and will the kitchen become superfluous?

For quite some time now, cooking has not only taken place in kitchens. Due to street food trucks as modern takeaways and public food festivals home kitchens stay cold. In one-person households cooking is becoming increasingly rare and even families are taking less time to share a meal than they used to in the past.

At the same time, people in Germany are spending more and more money on their home kitchens. The kitchen is the new status symbol! The kitchen appliances of tomorrow have an internet connection, can reorder milk, give recipe suggestions and cook autonomously.

But regardless of where the journey of the kitchen is heading, one thing seems certain: for most people, the cooking area is the centre of their social life. Thus, things certainly remain exciting around the cooker!